

About "Parenting from the Pew"

You will notice if you read this book, that the philosophy driving the book is different than the philosophy of the Worship Training Room.

Parenting from the Pew talks about helping your child actively participate in worship. The purpose of the Worship Training Room is to help you work with your child to learn to sit through the service.

While the purposes are different, we do not think they are opposed to each other. We consider the Worship Training Room to be the 1st step in the process. We believe that after a child can learn to sit in a service, then they will be better equipped to actively engage the worship service.

We think the worship training room is Step #1 and then engaging your child with the information from Parenting from the Pew is Step #2.

What step you choose to start on can depend on the age and maturity of you child.

About "Parenting from the Pew"

You will notice if you read this book, that the philosophy driving the book is different than the philosophy of the Worship Training Room.

Parenting from the Pew talks about helping your child actively participate in worship. The purpose of the Worship Training Room is to help you work with your child to learn to sit through the service.

While the purposes are different, we do not think they are opposed to each other. We consider the Worship Training Room to be the 1st step in the process. We believe that after a child can learn to sit in a service, then they will be better equipped to actively engage the worship service.

We think the worship training room is Step #1 and then engaging your child with the information from Parenting from the Pew is Step #2.

What step you choose to start on can depend on the age and maturity of you child.